Portal Bar

Portal Bar is the newly opened “mischievous younger sibling” to the well-established Portal Restaurant next door (awarded Best Stockholm Restaurant of the Year, 2016). Owned and managed by Klas Lindberg, Swedish Chef of the Year winner 2012. The name stems from the characteristic portal, in the centre of the historic building, which leads pedestrians from the busy S:t Eriksplan, via stairs, to the calm residential Atlas district below and behind. The Portal Restaurant and the Portal Bar now flanks both sides of this portal.

las Lindberg asked Stockholm-based architects Claesson Koivisto Rune to design the interior architecture for Portal Bar. The ambience should contrast to the blond and bright interior of the portal Restaurant and a midnight blue, Swedish limestone, oak and copper concept was adopted. The space in the words of the architects:

“Much thought has gone into creating a contained spatial flow and unity in what used to be two different shops with closed back storages. First, the windows were cleared so that the space fully takes in the panorama from the public square and park outside. Then the interior was opened up all the way to the back so that parallel sightlines run through the ascending levels of the bar space, via an intermediate smaller dining area and a larger back dining hall that doubles as a chambre séparée. The basement

Guest star Maurizio Stocchetto during Stockholm Design Week

During Stockholm Design Week Maurizio Stocchetto – bartender grandmaster and owner of legendary Bar Basso, Milan – will be guest starring and serving cocktails. Bar Basso is the famous late-night hangout for all the star designers of the world and their entourage during the Milan Design Week in April every year.

includes a full studio kitchen for cooking classes and events.”

New zinc and oak tables for Wästberg and burgundy red wine racks for Design Of was custom designed by the architects for Portal Bar.

But Claesson Koivisto Rune wanted to add another artistic dimension, so they called their friend, artist Jesper Walder-sten. He agreed to create a graphic artwork, named “Dante’s Ocean”, that was painted on-site and meanders over the entire ceiling and upper parts of the walls.

“I see the work as dream-like, friendly constellations against a canopy that is both the ocean and the night sky at the same time”, says Jesper Waldersten.

The interior ambience matches the food and drink concept which is “light fare with a wide array of beverages”. In short, the perfect watering hole for a spontaneous and unpretentious get-together.

Avknoppningar

4 Area 41 Showroom, Riddargatan 41
nola.se

The exhibition is a joint project by the designers Mia Cullin & Anki Gneib, Nola and the floral scenography designer Claes Carlsson. A close collaboration between the designers, producer and floral designer that may be likened to cross-pollination.

Avknoppningar is a further development of Gneib and Cullin's acclaimed planters Cacti and Gro, now developed into a family of trellises, bird tables, vases and sculpture designs. Growth is a recurring theme in the exhibition where strict graphic design meets organic unrestraint in unexpected expressions.

Plant supplier: Skalleberg Handelsträdgård.

A model of ecological kitchens

The Miinus kitchen has been built ecologically and adheres to a philosophy of 3R – Reduce, Reuse, Recycle.

Based on indoor air measurements and carbon footprint calculations, we identified at an early stage, materials required to reduce a kitchen's environmental impact. We redesigned our kitchens, made them lighter and more ecological to transport.

The materials chosen for our Miinus range, together with non-toxic manufacturing methods, ensure a pure, safe kitchen for day-to-day living. The Miinus kitchen emits less than half the limit values specified for M1, the top indoor air rating. All Miinus kitchen materials are re-usable and recyclable.

It all started with a revelation and a competition. In 1949, the leading Swedish publishing house Bonnier realised that people would likely buy more books if they had somewhere to put them. With this in mind, Bonnier launched a competition calling for a shelving solution that was easy to install. Married couple Nils and Kajsa Strinning entered and won with a flexible, elegant and minimalist shelving system that could be mounted on any wall. And voilà: String® was born.

70 years later, the String® family is consistently evolving and expanding to suit a contemporary lifestyle.

swedese.se / info@swedese.se

Ever since Swedese was founded, our driving force has been to come up with creative solutions. Good design doesn't only make life more comfortable, it also makes it more interesting. Our furniture makes people's lives easier, as well as more stylish.

The majority of our production still takes place in Vaggeryd and Äng. Even though we are inspired by international developments in design, we are also strongly influenced by the materials and values that are part of our local environment in Småland, creating a natural combination of bold design and consistent focus on sustainability.

Swedese offers a way of living that combines design with comfort. We create furniture that fit perfectly next to old favourites. In our world, life is easy and elegant, without compromises. But, a home is not made simply through furniture and decoration, it also has to be lived in. How our furniture will be used is up to you to decide. We may have given them shape, but you are the one that give them meaning. From our home to yours.
